Jennifer Whittaker is passionate about serving the Lord. As a child, Jennifer grew-up in church and thought she knew Christ as her Savior. After years of not living as God's child, He finally got her attention when she was homeless, in an abusive relationship and eating out of a dumpster.

Jennifer met her husband of 11 years at a new job where her first words were, "I am sorry you are stuck with me." Only God knew how true that statement would be. Together they came to know the Lord. Jennifer and her husband submitted to God's authority and accepted His beautiful gift of salvation. Since that point God has turned their lives upside down.

She and her husband live in Lexington, Kentucky. Together they have traveled numerous times to Haiti and the Dominican Republic to serve, proclaim and disciple while helping to build an orphanage and homes. Jennifer and her husband serve as Southern Baptist Disaster Relief volunteers as well as Global Baptist Relief volunteers. She does not mind getting dirty or doing hard labor if it means she gets to love on people and show them God's Hospitality. She is a Welcome Volunteer and an Adult Women's Discipleship teacher at her home church, Buck Run Baptist Church in Frankfort, Kentucky.
